

Humanities is the study of the human experience
in all its forms.

In humanities, we ask questions that provoke thought, art and philosophical debate about life's big questions. The answers to these questions have changed and evolved since humans have been asking them, and we're still answering them.

The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences at Arizona State University has over 20 majors in the humanities. Uncertain what major to pick and how it'll get you a job?

Don't worry! Seventy-five percent of Google hires annually are liberal arts or humanities majors. And philosophy majors perform best on the LSAT.

So forge your own path. Major in Chinese and take classes in political science and biochemistry to solve global health problems. Or major in history and minor in urban planning and preserve historic buildings around the world. Create your dream job; we're here to help.

From the first year student to the distinguished faculty member, students and scholars at ASU are creating new knowledge and pioneering solutions.

The College

In the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences we're redefining the liberal arts and sciences for the 21st century.

We encourage students and faculty to think beyond traditional academic boundaries. Our 89 undergraduate majors and 136 graduate degrees are housed in 22 interdisciplinary schools and departments in the natural sciences, social sciences and humanities.

No matter what you specialize in, our expert faculty, state-of-the-art facilities and 40 world-class research centers and institutes will help you pioneer solutions to society's most pressing issues.

At ASU we think big about people, about communities, about our environment, about the changing world around us.

Gone are the days of one job, one career in one lifetime.

Society's survival and success will rely on solutions created by the most capable of thinkers. They will be those who have been trained to think critically and learn anything. We call them master learners.

So, major in the humanities, but know that the education from the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences will allow you to move seamlessly through jobs, ideas and disciplines throughout your life.

Bring your energy, creativity and drive and find solutions to society's biggest questions.
